Hotels in Burgundy

Sainte-Maxime is about 15 hours from London by car. The journey can be comfortably broken with an overnight stop in Paris. For travellers who wish to bypass Paris, the town of Beaune in the heart of the Burgundy's Cote d'Or is a favourite stopping point. The mosaic tiled roof of the Hospice of L'Hôtel-Dieu is a notable attraction, as are the famous wine-growing chateaux, and excellent hotels and restaurants, serving the gastronomic specialities of Burgundy.

Hotel de la Poste ****

High quality restaurant and accommodation in Boulevard Clemenceau, with a bar, billiards, a terrace and garage parking. 18 rooms.

L' Auberge Bourguignonne **

On Place Madeleine, the small, family-run auberge is in the centre of Beaune. It has a limited number of rooms, but its traditional restaurant is extremely popular, and well worth visiting even if you stay in another hotel.

Hotel des Remparts ***

The hotel dates from the 17th Century, in the cobbled streets of the heart of historic Beaune (300 metres from the Hospice). It takes its name from its proximity to the ancient fortified town walls. The hotel has several rooms, but no restaurant, so try the restaurant of the Auberge Bourguignonne, a short walk away.

Hotel St George

A modern hotel in the famous wine-growing town of Nuits St George. The hotel is extremely convenient, easily reached from the autoroute, with private parking, swimming pool, modern rooms and an excellent restaurant.

Le Bourguignon

In Beze, a beautiful country town, completely off the beaten track. In an idyllic rural setting Beze is an attractive traditional french town. At its centre Le Bourguignon provides high standard accommodation and restaurant.
